Parents ask themselves these questions every year. Now NH State Parent Information and Resource Center (PIRC) is offering "train the trainer" sessions to teachers, childcare and preschool professionals and community members so they can provide kindergarten readiness training, including language and literacy skill development to parents of typically developing three and four year old children.

Addresses the typically developing child entering Kindergarten including:

- Gross Motor Skills
- Fine Motor Skills
- Vocabulary
- Social Skills
- Memory
- Visual Discrimination

Training participants receive all of the materials needed to conduct the workshops, including:

- A Training Manual & CD ROM with training notes, discussion points, and handouts in reproducible format
- Workshop activity ideas and supplies related to the workshop
- Welcome to Kindergarten DVD that reviews school readiness skills and expectations
- Stipends and expense reimbursement for workshops you provide
- Ongoing support and all materials needed for workshops free of charge, including free books, CDs and DVDs to give away to parents

Make a Difference: Volunteer!

Volunteers agree to offer two workshops over the 24 months following the training. Stipends and expense reimbursement available for workshops provided. You'll receive training, ongoing support and all materials needed for workshops free of charge, including books, CDs and DVDs to give away to parents. Of course you'll also reap the benefits that come from sharing the love of literacy plus lots of "thank you's" from parents, children and from NH State PIRC staff.
